- 00:00 I found that really people in fact, that life is something which always comes back because even when I go back to Rwanda now, you see people also smiling, living almost a normal life. Also that, that's also a lesson, you know, I will never forget because you know, you may be inclined to think that some of the people, after what they underwent, they will never come back to normal.
- 00:31 But now, you see, you go back to Kigali, you see that – okay it's one of the cleanest town in Africa. Life has, you know, life is back and people are smiling, living almost a normal life. So that's also really something what, that struck me and which is I'm living still with.
